

A deepfake of me is online: the first hour (US)

A sexual image of you, made with AI, is online. In the United States, the law gives you a clock. Start it now:

THE 5 STEPS

1

Save the proof

A full-page screenshot with the address and the date, and the exact link of every copy. Do not share the image.

2

Send a valid 48-hour request

Through the platform's intimate-image form: I am the person depicted. I did not consent. Here is the link. Here is how to reach me. Note the time.

3

Get it out of Google

Google's form for explicit fake images asks Google to drop the result from search, even if the site refuses.

4

Hour 49: report the platform

Still online after 48 hours? Report the platform to the FTC at takeitdown.ftc.gov, with your dates. Then ask again.

5

Block the copies

StopNCII.org fingerprints the image on your phone so partner platforms block re-uploads. Search your name on day 3 and day 7.

DO NOT

- ✗ Do not pay anyone who threatens you. Report to the FBI at ic3.gov instead.
- ✗ Do not send your face or your ID to anyone who promises a removal.
- ✗ Do not confront the person who made it before your proof is saved.

WHERE TO GET HELP

TakeItDown.ftc.gov takeitdown.ftc.gov

In the US, report a platform that ignored your 48-hour request.

Take It Down takeitdown.ncmec.org

For images of anyone under 18. Free.

CCRI helpline 1-844-878-2274

Free US support line for intimate images shared without consent.

The full guide

sosdeepfake.com/en/take-it-down-act-48-hours/

Free to use (CC BY 4.0): print it, post it, share it, crediting sosdeepfake.com.

Updated: October 2026